1 P R O C E E D I N G S

2 (11:00 a.m.)

3 JUDGE JOHNSON HINES: Good morning, everyone.

4 All right. We're here in the matter of Certain
5 Wearable Devices, Investigation No. 337-TA-1478.

6 May I have appearances from counsel, and we'll
7 start with Samsung.

8 MR. TRAINOR: Good morning, Your Honor. This is 9 Sean Trainor from O'Melveny & Myers on behalf of the Samsung
10 Complainants. AND with me is Mr. Pensabene, who despite the 11 "R" next to his name, does represent Complainant. He's just 12 not used to it.

13 MR. PENSABENE: Sorry.

14 JUDGE JOHNSON HINES: No worries. All right.

15 MR. VIDWAN: Good morning, Your Honor. Jasjit
16 Vidwan with Mayer Brown on behalf of Respondents Oura. I'm 17 also joined by my colleague Rob Pluta.

18 JUDGE JOHNSON HINES: Good morning. All right.

19 So we're here for a preliminary conference. A 20 couple things to talk about, the first of which is the 21 parties' proposed schedule.

22 So thank you for agreeing to the dates. I do
23 appreciate it. I have two proposed changes I'd like to talk
24 about, and they are to the dates for the post-hearing
25 briefs. I'd like to change the date for the initial

1 post-hearing briefs just a few days earlier to October 6th,
2 and I'd like to change the date for the responsive
3 post-hearing briefs to October 20th.

4 Mr. Trainor, is there any issue with that?

5 MR. TRAINOR: No issue, Your Honor. Thank you.

6 JUDGE JOHNSON HINES: Mr. Vidwan?

7 MR. VIDWAN: No issue, Your Honor.

8 JUDGE JOHNSON HINES: Okay. Good.

9 With that, the dates -- the other dates all seem
10 fine. So we'll get the procedural schedule out in short 11 order.

12 There were a couple of things I wanted to talk
13 about on the schedule. The parties added a deadline for 14 party production of source code, and I wanted to get an 15 understanding, do the parties expect that they will be 16 producing source code?

17 And we'll start with you, Mr. Trainor.

18 MR. TRAINOR: Yes, Your Honor.

19 JUDGE JOHNSON HINES: All right. And I expect,
20 because the parties agreed to this, that Samsung doesn't see 21 any issue with production of code for what I understand the 22 domestic industry products are, which are the Samsung ring,
23 Samsung watch, and Samsung mobile devices; is that correct?

24 MR. TRAINOR: Yeah, the source code, Your Honor,
25 will be produced for the ring and the watch.

1 JUDGE JOHNSON HINES: All right.

2 MR. TRAINOR: For the mobile devices, it's more
3 of a mechanical-type patent. So that will not have source
4 code produced for it.

5 JUDGE JOHNSON HINES: Okay. Thank you for that
6 clarification.

7 And for the ring and the watch, you don't
8 anticipate any issue with a March 30 production?

9 MR. TRAINOR: Not at all, Your Honor.

10 JUDGE JOHNSON HINES: All right. And, you know,
11 to be clear, the reason I put this date in the procedural
12 schedule is so that the parties can discuss this issue. I
13 understand that it can be sensitive, but the parties need to 14 work on it early.

15 I understand there can be things that happen and 16 some things that can be produced later. My intention here
17 is to have as much of the party code produced by a certain
18 time. My intention is not to say if something gets left
19 out, that it cannot be produced later. All right?

20 So I want the parties to be aware of and comply
21 with the date they agreed to, because here you're agreeing
22 to it. But that's not to say that there will be -- it
23 depends on the situation, but if something is produced after 24 that date, maybe we need to discuss it; maybe we don't. But 25 I want to put that caveat in as well.

1 Mr. Vidwan, do you expect there will be any issue
2 with Oura producing code for its product by the agreed March
3 30 date?

4 MR. VIDWAN: No, Your Honor. Our source code is 5 ready for inspection as of today.

6 JUDGE JOHNSON HINES: Okay. So do the parties
7 expect they will be seeking any amendment to the protective
8 order because of production of their code?

9 Mr. Trainor, I'll start with you.

10 MR. TRAINOR: Yes, Your Honor. And in light of 11 the related -- "related" in air quotes -- 1468
12 investigation, Mr. Vidwan's team has sent us over a draft
13 for that case that we will apply to both. And we have sent 14 back comments that hopefully we can get both source code
15 protective order amendments to you fairly quickly in that 16 case and in this one.

17 JUDGE JOHNSON HINES: Okay. Well, I'm sort of 18 skipping ahead a bit, because I did have this on my notes,
19 but do the parties anticipate a cross-use agreement with the 20 1468 investigation?

21 MR. TRAINOR: Neither Mr. Vidwan nor I or our 22 teams have discussed that. You know, off the cuff, it
23 probably makes sense, but we will confer with them, and to 24 the extent we need to do that, we will file the appropriate
25 amendments for those protective orders. Or agreements.

1 JUDGE JOHNSON HINES: Right. I'm not exactly
2 sure of the mechanism to do it, but I did want to tee up the
3 issue now that cross-use may make sense. You all would know
4 better than I, but seeing as we have the same parties on 5 opposite sides in two different investigations, it may make 6 sense. So whatever the appropriate mechanism to do that.

7 My point here is I'd like the parties to discuss
8 it, address it, and come to some sort of agreement as soon
9 as possible.

10 With respect to motions to amend the protective
11 order for source code production, if you're not already 12 aware, if you look at earlier cases of mine, you'll become 13 aware. To the extent the parties want a prosecution bar in 14 an amendment to a protective order, the parties should 15 acquaint themselves with Deutsche Bank and what the 16 requirements are there. If those are met, I will consider
17 it. If they are not or not even addressed, I will not.

18 So just a preview, to the extent you all are 19 already discussing those issues and that particular one for 20 a prosecution bar.

21 I saw, Mr. Vidwan, that Oura has sought a number
22 of subpoenas. It looks like some -- to third parties. It
23 looked like some of those subpoenas requested or encompassed
24 source code. This may be a little early, but do you have 25 any information on the status of third-party source code

1 production?

2 MR. VIDWAN: Yes, Your Honor. So we are talking
3 -- we have talked -- spoken with at least Apple. And Apple
4 is willing to give their source code. And we will talk to 5 them about the protective order. We are speaking with 6 Microsoft today, and we are waiting for the other two third
7 parties to respond.

8 JUDGE JOHNSON HINES: Okay. To the extent any of 9 the third parties request modification or supplementation to 10 the protective order for production of their code, I will
11 obviously consider that as well, with the caveat I gave you
12 before with respect to a prosecution bar.

13 MR. VIDWAN: Yes, Your Honor.

14 JUDGE JOHNSON HINES: So just get those in as 15 soon as you can. My main objective is to not have what I
16 see as procedural issues with respect to protective order
17 amendments, things like that, to unnecessarily delay
18 substantive production.

19 MR. VIDWAN: Understood, Your Honor.

20 JUDGE JOHNSON HINES: Okay. Great.

21 Back to the procedural schedule. One other thing
22 I wanted to -- one additional thing I wanted to point out
23 was the March 16th date for initial responses to contention
24 interrogatories. That's not a date that I put in my 25 proposed schedule. Parties almost always put them in

1 themselves, and I understand why.

2 With respect to that date, in particular, to the 3 extent the parties have a dispute about the sufficiency of 4 initial contention responses, they should be aware that 5 those types of disputes are difficult for me to assess.
6 It's hard for me to know what is sufficient and what is not
7 in an initial response.

8 I will say the parties are under an obligation to 9 seasonably amend their responses as discovery proceeds. I
10 understand why parties put in specific dates for contentions
11 and want to, you know, proceed in that way. But parties do
12 have an obligation to seasonably amend.

13 One other thing with respect to discovery
14 responses, it is my view that responding to a discovery
15 request by saying that you are willing to meet and confer is 16 not sufficient. That's not a response to discovery.

17 So I would like the parties to keep that in mind
18 when they are responding to either interrogatories or 19 document requests. I'm not suggesting that the parties
20 should not meet and confer on the scope of requested
21 discovery and negotiate and agree to other things.

22 What I am saying is that the only response should 23 not be that the party is willing to meet and confer. There
24 is an obligation to do what you can, to do what you think is 25 appropriate. If you think the request asks for all

1 privileged information, then say that. If you think for 2 some other reason it is objectionable, say that.

3 But to the extent that it is not objectionable, a
4 response is required. So parties don't get off the hook by 5 saying we're willing to meet and confer. Discovery should 6 move forward.

7 All right. The last thing on the schedule is a
8 potential for a tutorial. There's not one in the schedule,
9 which is fine. My experience has been that claim
10 construction may be too early for a substantive tutorial.
11 Sometimes it is; sometimes it is not. But I'm fine with not 12 having a tutorial at that time.

13 In other cases where I believe it would be
14 helpful for me, I've asked the parties to provide a tutorial
15 immediately before the evidentiary hearing. I recognize 16 that party time is precious in those days leading up to the 17 evidentiary hearing. And I don't want to interfere with 18 preparation.

19 However, when I think it would be especially 20 helpful to me, in instances where technology is complicated,
21 particularly, or when there's just a large volume of issues,
22 it is helpful to me to have a tutorial. So I want the 23 parties to be aware that I may request that. I try as much
24 as possible to give the parties options for when that can
25 take place, so it is at the least inconvenient time

1 possible.

2 In addition, if the parties believe that a
3 tutorial would be helpful, notwithstanding that I haven't
4 asked for it, the parties may ask for one. In the past,
5 what I have done is had either an hour or hour and a half
6 for each side to present the issues they believe would be 7 most helpful to me to understand the technology in the case.
8 So I want it to be up to you. I don't want it to be a joint 9 presentation, because I think those are impossible.

10 And so parties can focus on various issues and 11 the issues that they believe are important. Sometimes it is 12 educating me on vocabulary, terms that I'm going to hear and 13 hear a lot about, so that going into the evidentiary
14 hearing, there's not as much of a learning curve.

15 So I wanted to explain to the parties what my 16 thoughts are on that. And if the parties want to request
17 one, they can. You certainly don't have to. But I wanted
18 to let you know that that would be a possibility.

19 All right. Likewise, with respect to summary
20 determination motions, typically those are considered on the 21 briefs. If either party wants a hearing, they need to just 22 ask for one. I'm not guaranteeing I will give it, but I
23 won't unless you ask. So please consider that. I am more
24 likely to grant a hearing for a summary determination
25 motions if the parties have someone who has less experience

1 argue the motion. So consider that as well.

2 All right. That is all I have on
3 schedule-related issues. Is there anything else we should 4 discuss on the case schedule?

5 Mr. Trainor?

6 MR. TRAINOR: No, Your Honor.

7 JUDGE JOHNSON HINES: Mr. Vidwan?

8 MR. VIDWAN: Nothing for Oura, Your Honor.

9 JUDGE JOHNSON HINES: All right. Then I want to 10 move to the ground rules. And, first, I'll open the 11 question to the parties.

12 Do the parties have any questions on the ground
13 rules that we should discuss at this point?

14 Mr. Trainor?

15 MR. TRAINOR: None from us, Your Honor.

16 JUDGE JOHNSON HINES: Mr. Vidwan?

17 MR. VIDWAN: None for Oura either, Your Honor.

18 JUDGE JOHNSON HINES: So, presumably, you're
19 familiar with them because I don't think they differ too
20 much from the ground rules in 1468. But please read them.
21 All of us do things a little bit different. Two things I
22 will highlight, please provide paper copies of the 23 identified papers; that is, Markman briefs, summary
24 determination, motions in limine, pre- and post-hearing
25 briefs. I really do use and appreciate paper copies.

1 So if we don't get them, we will follow up, but I
2 do appreciate getting them without having to follow up. So
3 please do that.

4 Also I didn't go back to look to see when we
5 changed this ground rule, so we may have already discussed
6 this in 1468. So if I'm repeating myself, I apologize. We 7 made a change to the ground rules on proposed constructions,
8 and that is when a party asserts that a claim term has its 9 plain and ordinary meaning, I think it would be more
10 productive for the parties to identify what that plain and 11 ordinary meaning is or what the plain and ordinary meaning
12 is not. However you choose to articulate it, I do think it
13 would be helpful if there's something more than just "plain
14 and ordinary meaning." So we made that change.

15 With respect to discovery issues, we set a case
16 management conference every month. And the primary purpose
17 of the case management conference is to address any 18 discovery issues the parties are having. It's not to 19 suggest that they should be having them, but there is that 20 opportunity for those to be raised.

21 The ground rules set out the procedures for 22 raising discovery issues in advance of a case management
23 conference. One thing I will ask is when the parties submit 24 letters for resolution at a case management conference, to 25 consider the amount or volume of materials included in

1 attachments to those letters.

2 All right. Here I see -- Mr. Trainor, you can
3 correct me if I'm wrong -- there are four asserted patents,
4 two of them are related, and there are 39 asserted claims.
5 Does that sound right?

6 MR. TRAINOR: That sounds right, Your Honor.

7 JUDGE JOHNSON HINES: All right. I do not have 8 any formal case narrowing requirements. My view, at least 9 now, is that the parties should narrow the case as they 10 proceed and then do it in a way that they believe makes 11 sense and perhaps not in a way that I impose.

12 Four patents and 39 claims would be an awful lot
13 for a single evidentiary hearing. So I expect that will 14 become smaller. As of right now, the time for you to -- 15 excuse me. As of right now, the time for that to be 16 determined is up to you, Mr. Trainor.

17 Likewise, Mr. Vidwan, I don't require case
18 narrowing for the validity case.

19 For both, the number of asserted patents and 20 claims, the amount of asserted prior art, the parties should 21 be able to determine what they can try in a five-day
22 evidentiary hearing.

23 All of that said, if there are issues on case
24 narrowing, the parties should bring them to me and we can 25 discuss them and see how we can move forward.

1 Are there any questions on that?

2 MR. TRAINOR: None, Your Honor. And totally
3 understood and agreed.

4 JUDGE JOHNSON HINES: Mr. Vidwan?

5 MR. VIDWAN: None, Your Honor.

6 JUDGE JOHNSON HINES: Okay. Great.

7 I'd like to get an understanding from the parties
8 on the status of related litigations.

9 And I'll start with you, Mr. Trainor.

10 MR. TRAINOR: There are two corresponding 11 District Court cases -- Mr. Pensabene, correct me if I'm 12 wrong here -- one which I believe has been or will be stayed 13 and then a second one that is related that does not have 14 counterpart ITC patents as alleged, so my understanding is 15 it will be moving forward.

16 MR. PENSABENE: That's correct.

17 JUDGE JOHNSON HINES: All right. And where is -- 18 where are those pending?

19 MR. TRAINOR: Eastern District --

20 JUDGE JOHNSON HINES: I'm sorry?

21 MR. TRAINOR: The Eastern District of Texas, Your
22 Honor.

23 JUDGE JOHNSON HINES: The Eastern District of 24 Texas, okay.

25 All right. Mr. Vidwan, anything to add to that?

1 MR. VIDWAN: No, Your Honor. I think that's the 2 universe so far.

3 JUDGE JOHNSON HINES: I'm sorry. I didn't --

4 MR. VIDWAN: That's the universe of parallel
5 cases right now.

6 JUDGE JOHNSON HINES: Understood. Thank you.

7 Are there any Patent Office proceedings,
8 corresponding Patent Office proceedings?

9 MR. TRAINOR: None that we're aware of.

10 JUDGE JOHNSON HINES: Okay. Thank you.

11 MR. TRAINOR: Sorry, Mr. Vidwan.

12 JUDGE JOHNSON HINES: All right.

13 MR. PENSABENE: Well, I guess, just to clarify,
14 yeah, on this case there's none, right. Sorry.

15 JUDGE JOHNSON HINES: Okay. All right.

16 We issued an order recently extending the time to 17 respond to the complaint, so that is now due February 16th.

18 I mentioned earlier -- or we discussed earlier
19 the subpoenas that Oura has requested to date to Apple,
20 Intel, Microsoft, and DigiKey.

21 Mr. Vidwan, do you anticipate additional
22 third-party subpoenas at this point?

23 MR. VIDWAN: Yes, Your Honor. We believe at 24 least one or two more. We are getting those worked out, but 25 we anticipate at least one or two more.

1 JUDGE JOHNSON HINES: All right. Get those in as
2 quickly as you can. We aim to get them issued quickly, so
3 it's up to you to get them to us.

4 Mr. Vidwan, do you anticipate any discovery
5 through the Hague process?

6 MR. VIDWAN: No, Your Honor.

7 JUDGE JOHNSON HINES: All right. So the same
8 questions for you, Mr. Trainor. Does Samsung anticipate
9 third-party subpoenas or going through the Hague process?

10 MR. TRAINOR: At this point, no, to both
11 questions, Your Honor.

12 JUDGE JOHNSON HINES: All right. And this 13 question is for you, Mr. Trainor. Do you expect a need for 14 a significant amount of discovery to require translation?

15 MR. TRAINOR: I don't believe so, no, Your Honor.
16 There will obviously be some, but we don't expect it to be 17 overwhelming.

18 JUDGE JOHNSON HINES: All right. So given that's 19 the case, I expect you don't anticipate any issues with 20 providing any necessary translations?

21 MR. TRAINOR: No issues with that, Your Honor.

22 JUDGE JOHNSON HINES: Okay. With respect to the 23 evidentiary hearing, to be clear, my expectation is that 24 witnesses will attend in person, and that means they're 25 physically here in the building. We should be getting the

1 procedural schedule out quickly, so after you have that,
2 when you confer with experts or with potential fact
3 witnesses, keep them apprised of the dates so that can be 4 cleared on their calendar.

5 At this point, Mr. Trainor, do you anticipate any 6 issues with physical presence at an evidentiary hearing?

7 MR. TRAINOR: No, Your Honor.

8 JUDGE JOHNSON HINES: Mr. Vidwan, same question
9 for you.

10 MR. VIDWAN: No, Your Honor.

11 JUDGE JOHNSON HINES: Okay. Now, things
12 obviously happen. People's schedules change. They become 13 unable to attend. I understand that. If that happens, you
14 just need to let me know, and file a motion for remote
15 participation at the evidentiary hearing.

16 Are there any questions on that?

17 MR. TRAINOR: No, Your Honor.

18 MR. VIDWAN: Not for Oura, Your Honor.

19 JUDGE JOHNSON HINES: So between now and the 20 evidentiary hearing, the only in-person date we have 21 scheduled is the claim construction hearing. And because 22 there has been some question on that elsewhere, I will say
23 here, my expectation is that will be in person and that 24 counsel will attend in person.

25 Are there any questions on that?

1 MR. TRAINOR: No, Your Honor. That was
2 definitely our expectation.

3 JUDGE JOHNSON HINES: Mr. Vidwan?

4 MR. VIDWAN: Same here, Your Honor.

5 JUDGE JOHNSON HINES: I'll give you the same
6 caveat there. Understanding -- well, now we know snowstorms
7 happen, and other things happen. And so, you know, if 8 there's a need to change or something happens, just let me
9 know. The going-in expectation is we'll be here in person.
10 So if there's something else, let us know.

11 Let me circle back on one thing I omitted that I
12 wanted to raise with respect to the evidentiary hearing.
13 And that is my personal view is that it is better if client
14 representatives can attend the hearing and as much of the 15 hearing as possible. So if the parties can reach some kind
16 of agreement where client representatives can attend,
17 notwithstanding CBI designations, then I ask the parties to 18 at least discuss it and see if they can reach agreement.
19 Sometimes you can't, but I just went through an evidentiary
20 hearing where the parties could.

21 And so I ask that. Seeing things live and in 22 person is different than events being relayed to you. And 23 for client representatives that are going to take the time
24 to attend, it seems logical that parties try to get them to 25 attend as much as they can. So I will probably circle back

1 on that as we go forward because I do think it's important
2 to -- for the parties to try to do that.

3 Are there any questions on that?

4 MR. TRAINOR: No, Your Honor. And we certainly 5 understand and agree with the sentiment.

6 MR. VIDWAN: None for Oura, Your Honor.

7 JUDGE JOHNSON HINES: All right. All right.

8 Mr. Trainor, have you served discovery and what 9 is the status?

10 MR. TRAINOR: Yes, Your Honor. Both sides have 11 served discovery, and we've agreed to mutual extensions to 12 coincide with their answer date of February 16th.

13 JUDGE JOHNSON HINES: All right. Mr. Vidwan, do
14 you have anything to add with respect to the parties'
15 service of initial discovery?

16 MR. VIDWAN: No, Your Honor. Mr. Trainor covered
17 it.

18 JUDGE JOHNSON HINES: Okay. Great.

19 Mr. Trainor, do you anticipate any unusual issues
20 with discovery at this point?

21 MR. TRAINOR: Not that I can think of, Your
22 Honor.

23 JUDGE JOHNSON HINES: All right. Mr. Vidwan, do
24 you?

25 MR. VIDWAN: No, Your Honor. We anticipate some

1 witnesses being in Finland, but other than that, I don't
2 think there's going to be any issues.

3 JUDGE JOHNSON HINES: All right. I don't know
4 what the status or what the procedures are for third-party
5 discovery in Finland, but --

6 MR. VIDWAN: I apologize, Your Honor. I meant,
7 it's party witnesses in Finland.

8 JUDGE JOHNSON HINES: Oh, oh, all right. Okay.

9 Mr. Trainor, do you anticipate any amendments to 10 the complaint or any additional parties or patents?

11 MR. TRAINOR: No, Your Honor.

12 JUDGE JOHNSON HINES: Mr. Vidwan, do you know of 13 any unique issues in this investigation that I should be 14 aware of at this point?

15 MR. VIDWAN: No, Your Honor.

16 JUDGE JOHNSON HINES: Are the parties working on 17 any stipulations, Mr. Trainor?

18 MR. TRAINOR: Not yet, but we will be, to 19 coincide with those that we need to get done in the 1468
20 investigation as well.

21 JUDGE JOHNSON HINES: All right.

22 MR. TRAINOR: So, you know, the standard
23 discovery stipulation and then I would expect importation
24 and inventory-type stipulations as well.

25 JUDGE JOHNSON HINES: Okay.

1 Mr. Vidwan, anything to add on that?

2 MR. VIDWAN: No, Your Honor.

3 JUDGE JOHNSON HINES: All right. It strikes me
4 that cross-use could be by way of stipulation, so you might 5 want to -- that may be a way to accomplish that goal, but 6 the parties will know that best.

7 All right. Those are all the issues that I have.
8 Is there anything else that the parties want to discuss at 9 this point?

10 Mr. Trainor?

11 MR. TRAINOR: Nothing from us, Your Honor.

12 JUDGE JOHNSON HINES: Mr. Vidwan?

13 MR. VIDWAN: Nothing for Oura, Your Honor.

14 JUDGE JOHNSON HINES: All right. Thank you very 15 much for your time and preparation. I appreciate it.

16 (Whereupon, at 11:29 a.m., the Preliminary 17 Conference concluded.)
